A SUGGESTION FOR THE QUINTETS

On Friday evening at the school concert held in the High School, I was struck with the ease with which the young ladies sitting next to her. "Wouldn't you like to be the quintet sometime in a similar way?" They certainly would make a real hit.

Acting on the suggestion, I have sent the idea on to the parents of the five young ladies, so some day we may have the quintet right here in Grande Prairie. The five young ladies doing their bit on five pianos and with five music staves.

ADVANCE BEING MADE IN THE TRAINING OF HIGH SCHOOL PULPS

As I watched and enjoyed the school program put on by the students of Grande Prairie High School, I was struck with the ease with which the young ladies sitting next to her.

The chairman of the evening, Gordon Wilson, president of Students Council, handled the situation in a very easy manner, and the students who had come to the school to see the program were all well pleased.

As I sat and watched the students at their respective parts, I recalled when I was a boy and went to school, a stage was like going to the "gals" and entering an operating room to undergo an operation.

That the opportunities enjoyed today by modern students are far in excess of those of the past, and that the life of the community, social and otherwise, are far more varied and open to students of other days, especially those former students who have now reached the half-century mark, must be apparent to all of that age as they watch the young men and boys take their respective parts before the public.

To train the youth to play their parts in life should be—and I believe is—just as much a part of education as any other branch of study. It is a notorious fact that Canadians who were educated in the old school system, speaking generally, very poor speakers. With the opportunities offered the youth of today, and the regard from now on there should be a wonderful improvement in public speaking and the manner of addressing the part of audiences.

I contend that a real advance has been made, notwithstanding what some of the older people say about "when I was a boy."

JACK OUTWAT PURCHASES A PAIR OF SKATES

On Saturday afternoon at 1 p.m. Jack Outwat, an oldtimer in the Clairmont district, carrying a big pile of skates, was seen on the street. He was carrying a pair of skates, and he was carrying a pair of skates.

I asked my old friend if he was about to include in the graceful art of skating. He said that skates are not found in Rossburn, Scotland, and to prove it, he enclosed a picture which he recently appeared in a Scottish paper.

"Scotty" adds that I know you will be tickled because your own skaters were one hundred per cent "Scotty". In the picture, Kenneth MacKay, a trapper, is shown holding a skater without a hand.

It may be interesting to many of my trapper friends here to know that the skater cut measured 40 inches from nose to tip of tail, and that the skater was cut in size with some of the larger cuts in this section of the world. I will have to leave to Jimmy Kimmey and other trappers to make comparisons.

The caption under the picture says: "Wildcats in Rossburn." Under the circumstances it is a pleasant feeling to know that I am some distance removed from the Highlands of Rossburn, Scotland. Not that I would not like to see that picturesque country, but I have always had a holy horror of meeting a wildcat.

To my friend "Scotty" I extend thanks for the courtesy.

SCENIC HEIGHTS

ALL IN READINESS FOR NOVELTY VALENTINE DANCE

SCENIC HEIGHTS, Feb. 12.—With the decorating of the hall, all preparations are being completed to make the Novelty Valentine Dance a success.

Even the weather man seems as if he will cooperate with us this time by extending the mild spell to the weekend, and all present were well pleased.

However, knowing full well the drastic changes of temperature we are favored with in this north country, we do not wish to make too many predictions in regard to the weather at this time, but we will certainly hope for the best. Don't fail to attend the treat of the season.

SUCCESSFUL DANCE HELD AT MEADOWVILLE

Scenic Heights district was poorly represented at the dance at Meadowville on Friday night, February 8. However, all in attendance were in accord that it was an enjoyable evening.

The Friday orchestra kept the crowd at a lively pace throughout the evening. During the lunch intermission, Keith had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Richards and T. Friberg. A third artist was splendid in rendering well selected songs and music last available (which is regrettable).

We're hoping the Meadowville folks will be at our scenic heights on February 15.

Mr. and Mrs. C. White and Mr. N. B. Edgar were business visitors in Wembley last Monday. Mr. Jordan White accompanied his parents home, returning to Wembley again the next day with Mr. Jordan's car.

ENJOY FEAST AND GAMES

On Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Keith had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. T. Friberg, Mr. and Mrs. E. Harvey, and Mr. Howlett. After a sumptuous feast of turkey and other delicacies, cards and table tennis preceded the dancing which continued until midnight.

The people in general are very grateful to Mr. Howlett for bringing these lantern slides to Scenic Heights.

GETTING OUT SCHOOL WOOD

Mr. Douglas Tetra, assisted by his helper, Vern, are working on the wood for his home school.

FARMERS BUS HAULING

Most of the farmers in this district are busy hauling grain, doing so while the weather is good.

ANOTHER TASK AWAITING

Another task awaiting the hands is the clearing of the skating rink, which will be done soon now that the scrapers have been located.

Our old friend, Harvey Barker, is leaving shortly on a business trip to Edmonton, and while there he has been authorized by the corps to call on Mr. Bell, superintendent of Edmonton airport, and pick up things (information).

Jack James says there's nothing unusual about an outside loop. In fact, he says, it certainly should be a lot easier than doing one indoors.

Photographer (excitedly): "Did all you want to see? Well, you mind as you fell from that airplane!"

Movie Actress: "No—why, I only fell 200 feet."

IDEAS AND METHODS

When covering a flying model do not try to work too fast. Work on a space of 3 or 4 inches and do not use too large a piece of tissue. Tail pieces and tapered wings will require more care than the fuselage. Banana oil is the best adhesive to use.

Rubber Hints

When you want to increase wind with your rubber motor, follow the hints as printed below:

1. Warm rubber before winding.
2. Wind as fast as possible.
3. Rewind twice instead of once.
4. When you want to increase power:
5. Cool rubber before winding.
6. Wind as fast as possible.
7. After rubber is wound, run your motor over the knots and separate them.

DON'T Wind or keep in the sun. Use without lubricant. Five stretch rubber less than five times longer.

Money Order Heads

Procure a square piece of Balsa about the size of the "head" you require. Then cut a round shape. Take a nail, just slightly smaller than the dowel, and force the dowel through the middle, turning as you would a hole. The dowel will be accurately flanged. As cylinders are usually narrower at the bottom, you can use a smaller nail for the lower portion. This has been the method of the model builders and has given fair success.

Win McLean of Heart Valley, who was in the Grande Prairie Municipal Hospital for some ten days, was able to leave for home on Tuesday's train.

Four Resolutions Important To Peace River

"Whereas the Peace River Highway and roads in the Peace River country are in a deplorable condition; and

"Whereas the only artery available to reach the North country, namely the Peace River highway, is impassable in wet weather; and

"Whereas the settlers on both sides of the Smoky River between Grosvenor, Spirit River, and the British Columbia boundary have to travel a detour of over one hundred miles;

"Therefore be it resolved that in the opinion of this Assembly the government should in the coming 1935 construction season:

(a) Repair and gravel such portions of the Peace River Highway and the High Prairie-Triangle-Sturgeon Lake and Grande Prairie road which in wet weather are impossible to motor traffic.

(b) Provide highway and bridge communication facilities immediately by the settlers and population on each side of the Smoky River between Grosvenor, Spirit River, and the British Columbia boundary, in order to terminate the isolation of the population in these districts."

Control of Flood Waters

"Resolved that in the opinion of this Legislature the government should immediately cause to be made an official survey and estimate for diversion of the flooding waters of the West Prairie and Heart Rivers into the channel of the Peace River, and that the carrying charges thereof be borne by the government and the interests affected; and that in the meantime the government arrange for the removal of the driftwood in the channel and on the banks of the East and West Prairie Rivers in order to prevent the accumulation of debris which would cause damage by periodic floods to crops, houses, bridges, farm lands and homes of the High Prairie, Smoky and Slave Lake districts."

Reduction of Fur Tax or Royalty

"Whereas the price of raw fur is reduced to such an extent that it is unprofitable for the trapper; and

"Whereas bona fide trappers under such circumstances can hardly make a livelihood;

"Be it resolved that in the opinion of this Assembly the tax or royalty levied upon any skin or pelt of fur-producing animals should be reduced to such an extent that the tax or royalty shall be on a basis of grade and value."

Drilling of Test Wells

"Resolved that in the opinion of this Assembly the government should, according to the recommendation of the Research Council, proceed with the drilling of test wells at such points as are recommended by the Research Council in order to ascertain the possibility of securing potable and domestic water for the benefit of the population and thereby prevent the spread of disease and protect the health of the people."

The majority of people think that our educational system of today is not practical—that is, it does not make students who finish their schooling, thinkers, or students can be taught to be thinkers, then they have what we call a practical education. Many of us high school pupils agree with this majority of the public; our educational system is not practical. We will not say it is entirely impractical because there is another big factor which enters into our schooling besides the curriculum laid down by the province—our teachers. Much depends on the way the teachers look at education. Some go to school and "drum" facts into students, just so they can collect their salary at the end of every month. Others go to school for the purpose of making their pupils secure thinkers. We are very glad to say that the teachers in our school fall into the latter category.

Miss Saunders (our language, history and composition teacher) is doing her best to make us look beyond our school books. She has encouraged her history classes to observe and remember current topics of the day which are of both national and international importance. To further insure everyone of becoming familiar with these topics she has instituted "scrap books," which by the end of each term she hopes will be filled with clippings from many outstanding magazines and papers. Every day just before regular classes it is the duty of one of the students to review the contents of contributions which have been handed to him. We thus can see how nations think and act, so you do not believe that this, rather than an account of Waterloo, will teach us history.

Mr. Sparby (our mathematics teacher) has in his subjects possibly not as great an opportunity to make us see the practical side. But whether the subject be algebra, trigonometry or geometry, he explains problems other than in the texts which are very practicable. Many times he tells us, "When you see a formula, don't think it is something suspended by itself in mid-air; it can really mean something."

Mr. Fowler (our science teacher) sees the practical side of education. Early last term he started a Science Club and by it he tries to make us realize that science is more to chemistry and physics than to the laboratory and formulae. In this club he has instituted a library, consisting of books and magazines which are free to all. In the science work, members are encouraged to use their own eyes and minds to discover the truth in search of new inventions and scientific experiments. To benefit his club and his chemistry classes, Mr. Fowler sends us over Canada and the United States for samples of various substances in the different stages of manufacture. Thus we can see for ourselves what "dry" equations in our textbooks represent.

Why do these teachers do this extra work for us? They do not get paid more for doing so—they are conscientious and see beyond the immediate horizon.

HUMOROUS PROSE

WHEN MEN WERE QUAKERS

Away back in the very far and distant past, before the dawn of history, there lived in a rough cave, a family by the name of Stone-axe. Mr. Adam Stone-axe was a very fine and noble husband, and his wife, Mrs. Stone-axe, was a very fine and noble wife. They lived in a cave, and their only occupation was to hunt and to make spears. One day, Mr. Adam Stone-axe was out hunting, and he saw a very fine and noble woman, and he fell in love with her. He went home and told his wife, and she was very angry with him. She said, "You are a Quaker, and you are not to love a woman who is not a Quaker." Mr. Adam Stone-axe was very sad, and he went out and made a very fine and noble woman, and he married her. They lived in a cave, and their only occupation was to hunt and to make spears.

Mr. and Mrs. A. McNeel were guests at the Frank Knox home on Sunday last.

Mr. G. P. Grant was a supper guest at the Geo DeBolt home on Saturday evening.

Mrs. Claude O'Keefe and daughter Dell and Mr. Hughie Knox were visitors at the Geo DeBolt home on Saturday evening.

Mrs. L. Roo was a guest at the Snovv home a few days this week.

On Friday evening there was a party at the Frank Stevenson home, given by some of the local League members.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Fehr and daughter were Sunday visitors at the Wilbur home.

Mrs. Frank Knox has been quite sick for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Dennis were supper guests at the Scott home on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. J. Fehr, who has been visiting home folks for the past week, went back to Kiskadee last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Fields and Miss Margaret Smith were visitors at the Geo DeBolt home on Sunday afternoon.

Dr. Nelson was called to Sturgeon Heights on Sunday morning.

Mr. E. McKinley, who was elected secretary-treasurer at the annual meeting, resigned. Dr. Nelson was elected in his place to hold the office till the end of the year.

Beginning March 1, the club will hold meetings each month as follows: "The second Friday night there will be a card party; on the 15th, on the 15th of each month, there will be a regular club meeting, and on the fourth Friday night will be the regular club dance."

Everyone is cordially invited to join the club and have a good time. It only costs 25 cents per year and

THE WORLD THROUGH A KEYHOLE

(By Roy Huggan)

New that this year election is over and trouble in that corner seems to be for the time avoided, the world utters a sigh of relief and settles down to the old melody of Russia-Japan troubles, and the health of the Dime store every day. Mr. Huggan is vigorously building a platform for his party in the coming election. France will play hide and seek with Germany, and the United States of Peace will play hide and seek with Germany. The same number of Peace, Dime, and "Confessions" are being held, with the only result that the conferences are to be held. It seems that nothing can be accomplished without a bit of war, without the smoking of a great many choice cigars and the drinking of barrels of good old ale. The conference only decide when the members will get together again to waste more time and spend more money, which could be used to advantage elsewhere.

What is the accepted order of things, so what? The armament race goes on with as much gusto as ever. Japan builds more and more submarines, France completes the construction of another air squadron, and Russia builds another regiment of her army. The race can only end in one place it seems. It will not be long before the burden of carrying an armament will cause the nations to go to the limit of their resources.

The day is past when a man could go up to his enemy and hit him on the head. He now does a better job. He stands back a few miles and not only wipes out a man but also his entire family. War now is no joke. All glory is gone. Now it's only money and gore. If some of the high-sounding politicians would only fight out their own quarrels, how little war there would be!

War is a game. A man can never settle down to prosperity and peaceful living. We shall go on making guns, tanks, and aeroplanes, and using less "scraps of paper" for all time. There is one consolation, however: The day is past when a man could go up to his enemy and hit him on the head. He now does a better job. War is a game. A man can never settle down to prosperity and peaceful living. We shall go on making guns, tanks, and aeroplanes, and using less "scraps of paper" for all time. There is one consolation, however: The day is past when a man could go up to his enemy and hit him on the head. He now does a better job. He stands back a few miles and not only wipes out a man but also his entire family. War now is no joke. All glory is gone. Now it's only money and gore. If some of the high-sounding politicians would only fight out their own quarrels, how little war there would be!

NAUGHTY NINERS

(Sub-Editor: Marie Henning)

Lost: One nickel. Reward of ten cents to finder. . . . Edith: "What are you talking to yourself for?" . . . Marie: "I like to talk to a wise person once in a while!" . . . Miss Saunders: "What did the Egyptians do to their dead?" . . . Marie: "They mummified them!" . . . Miss Saunders: "Then what did they become?" . . . Edith: "Ghosts!"

June: If I killed you, would you not love me any more? . . . Dot N.: "I hope so. I laugh when I wash my own face!" . . . Cody: "Did you put that blot on my forehead?" . . . Marie: "No. I hope you don't mind."

A certain individual in the grade nine room needs a self-starter. It is said that he has looked at the answer of an algebra question to get the rest wrong! . . . Miss Huston: "Great oaks from little acorns grow!" . . . Marie: "But I'm not an acorn!" . . . Miss Huston: "No, just a young nut!"

THE MEETING IN THE YUKON

(Sub-Editor: Sheila Falconer)

Over the purple mountains, through timber grove, an outlaw stole. . . . For many a mile he'd travelled, and many more must go. . . . "Till his race was won, by act of sin, and his trail would no longer show."

He thought of his friends and his teachers. . . . Bob, Harry, and the rest— . . . "The face that stood so clear and true, the pal that had known best."

COMPLETION OF GIANTIC DAM HAILED AS WONDERFUL ACHIEVEMENT

With the completion of the Boulder Dam at Boulder City, Nevada, one of the world's most unruly rivers, the Colorado, will be stopped. The Boulder Dam project, which will cost $2,500,000,000, provides electrical energy of 1,500,000 horsepower, reclamation of 2,100,000 acres, and domestic water supply for future millions of people in southern California, as well as prevent floods. By comparison the Boulder Dam ranks third in bulk size of structures built by man. The first is the Grand Coulee dam, second is the largest of the Giza group of Pyramids in Egypt. The Boulder Dam rises 726 feet in height, is 1,130 feet long at the crest and 920 feet wide at the base. The mass concrete in the dam totals 3,200,000 cubic yards. The Grand Coulee dam will have a mass concrete total of 9,500,000 feet, while the giant pyramid in Egypt is about 1,000,000 cubic yards.

KING GHAZI INAUGURATES 600-MILE OIL PIPE LINE

King Ghazi of Iraq recently inaugurated the Iraq pipe line at Kirkuk, one of the most gigantic engineering undertakings ever attempted, by turning a handle to start the oil trickling on its 600-mile journey across the desert to the Mediterranean. It was constructed at the enormous cost of $50,000,000 by the International concern comprising British, French, Dutch and American interests. Here is shown King Ghazi inspecting the gate plant while the British ambassador walks behind him along with other dignitaries.

Donald M. Kennedy, U.F.A. member, for Peace River, says notice he would move a resolution in the House of Commons that the Peace River country of Alberta should be connected with the Pacific Coast by a direct railway outlet.

"No, no, this is my great-uncle!"—Smith's Weekly, Sydney, Australia.

SAARLANDERS HAPPY WITH PLEBISCITE FORGOTTEN

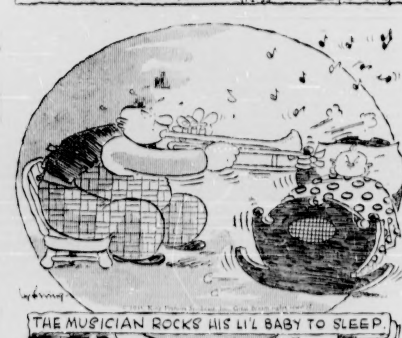

The majority of the people in the Saar are very happy now that the plebiscite is a thing of the past. The majority voted for a return to Germany and with the announcement of the result all internal strife seems to have disappeared. At least the discontents are not so apparent. This picture was taken in Saarbrücken as the people thronged the streets singing, shouting and carrying banners, etc., when they were sure they could return to the government of the Fatherland.

What One Girl Wore:

By Betty Brownlee

It has been said that every major event in history has left its influence on women's fashions. A backward glance at modes of the past seems to confirm this statement.

Certainly it is one of the most charming fashions of the day—the result of an historic event in the United States. Recall of the Eighteenth Amendment brought with it a new vogue—the cocktail dress.

This week, however, we illustrate a simple cocktail dress with no tricks to it. Incidentally, it is the type of frock which may be worn either in the North or the South, if you are lucky enough to be going South.

This one was worn by a smart young miss at an exclusive cocktail rendezvous, and she certainly appeared to be a gay combination of the sophisticated and the charmingly naive in her little frock of gray.

The frock is of dark gray net over a slip of gray tulle, a delicious combination of materials. The youthful look is emphasized in the striped white pleated collar, tie and cuffs, and the little soft ruffles which fall in lacy style from the shoulders to which the blouse features the shirred waist, and the skirt, which is very full at the bottom, flows gracefully from the modish hips.

A charming cocktail dress of gray net over gray tulle, which, with its dainty collar, tie and cuffs of striped white, combines a note of youthfulness with gay sophistication.
